As part of the AHA's Hospital Community Cooperative (HCC), member teams are advancing health equity and providing quality care by integrating the collective community voice in the implementation of place-based initiatives. Leaders from HCC teams Holy Name Medical Center and MultiCare Health System will share their hospitals respective journeys towards providing the best screening and educational programs by integrating the voice of the communities they serve.

Speakers:

- Kyung Hee Choi, MPH, Vice President, Asian Health Services, Holy Name Medical Center

- Jamilya Sherls-Jones, Director of Health Equity, Center for Health Equity & Wellness, MultiCare Health System
- Ann Mumford, President, Leaders in Women's Health

Learning Objectives:

- Describe how to integrate the collective community voice in delivering quality patient care and advance health equity.
- Learn how to design and implement culturally sensitive patient-centered screening and educational initiative.
- Identify strategies to ingrain health equity practices across all patient interactions.
