Partnership Pathways Grant

Announcing New CJCC Partnership Pathways Grants: Building Climate Justice Across Florida.

Allegany Franciscan Ministries is excited to introduce a new funding opportunity through its Climate Justice & Care for Creation Initiative (CJCC), the Partnership Pathways Grants. These grants are designed to open doors for organizations across Florida that are working to protect communities from the impacts of climate change while advancing equity and justice.

The goal of the CJCC is for everyone in our communities to have the resources, support, and opportunities necessary to thrive in the face of risks and threats caused by climate change. Through Partnership Pathways Grants, we will prioritize organizations new to CJCC funding and those serving geographic areas where the initiative has had limited reach, to build new relationships and broaden our reach across Florida.

What the grants support:

Partnership Pathways Grants will invest in projects that:

- Educate workers, employers, and the community about the effect of extreme heat on people who work outdoors, or provide resources and services that help people stay cool.
- Raise awareness about climate gentrification and its impact on low-income and communities of color, or take action to address it.
- Build new coalitions, strengthen existing ones, or engage in community organizing related to climate impacts.
- Advance policy work focused on extreme heat, climate gentrification, and housing.

Funding details:

- Up to 15 grants will be awarded.
- Each grant will provide up to $40,000.
- The grant period begins in January 2026 and runs for one year.

Why it matters?

Florida is on the frontlines of climate change. Extreme heat, rising housing pressures, and community displacement are not abstract future risks; they are lived realities today. Communities of color and other historically marginalized communities are least responsible and more at risk from the impacts of climate change due to systemic inequities and limited access to resources and power. The Partnership Pathways Grants are one way Allegany Franciscan Ministries stands alongside community partners to ensure solutions are just, inclusive, and grounded in the experiences of those most impacted. We invite you to share this opportunity with your networks.

Together, we can build healthier, more resilient communities and care for our common home.
